INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

His Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons for Scotland (HMCIPS) is required to inspect the conditions in which prisoners are transported or held across Scotland in order to establish the treatment of, and the conditions for, prisoners and to report publicly on the findings. This includes prisoners, prisoner transport and Court Custody Units where prisoners and custodies are held awaiting appearance on court.

This report is part of the programme of inspections of Court Custody Provision carried out by HM Inspectorate of Prisons for Scotland (HMIPS).

These inspections also contribute to the UK's response to its international obligations under the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (OPCAT). OPCAT requires that all places of detention are visited regularly by independent bodies – known as the National Preventive Mechanism (NPM) – which monitor the treatment of and conditions for detention. HMIPS is one of 21 bodies making up the NPM in the UK.

The inspections of CCUs are informed by a set of Standards as set out in our document 'Standards for Inspecting Court Custody Provision in Scotland,' published March 2017 which can be found at:

HMIPS Standards for Inspecting Court Custody Provision in Scotland

These Standards contribute positively to the effective scrutiny of court custody provision in Scotland and will encourage continuous improvement in the quality of care and custody of people held in court cells.

The Standards provide assurance to Ministers and the public that inspections are conducted in line with a framework that is consistent, and that assessments are made against appropriate criteria. This report is set out to reflect the performance against these Standards.

HMIPS assimilates information resulting in evidence-based findings utilising a number of different techniques. These include:

- obtaining information and documents from the Scottish Courts and Tribunals Service (SCTS) and the court inspected
- shadowing and observing staff as they perform their duties within the CCU
- interviewing custodies and staff on a one-to-one basis
- inspecting a wide range of facilities impacting on both custodies and staff and
- reviewing policies, procedures and performance reports

The information gathered facilitates the compilation of a complete analysis of the CCU against the Standards used. A record of the evidence gathered is produced by those undertaking the inspection against each of the Standards inspected.

HMIPS takes a human rights-based approach to ensure that both the standards and the principles of human rights are integrated into policy as well as the day to day running of organisations under scrutiny.

This report has been created based around a human rights-based approach known as the PANEL principles, set out as follows:

Participation: participation must be active, free, meaningful and give attention to issues of accessibility, including access to information in a form and a language which can be understood.

Accountability: accountability requires effective monitoring of human rights standards as well as effective remedies where human rights breaches occur. Is there evidence of issues raised previously now having been addressed?

Non-discrimination and equality: a human rights-based approach means that all forms of discrimination in the realisation of rights must be prohibited, prevented and eliminated. Are the most vulnerable and at risk identified and supported effectively?

Empowerment: a human rights-based approach means that individuals should know their rights or be made aware of them. Is information readily available and support provided so individuals know their rights and entitlements while in custody?

Legality: a human rights-based approach requires the recognition of rights as legally enforceable entitlements and is linked into national and international human rights law. Are the processes and procedures adopted in the CCU in line with legal obligations and human rights standards?

These are known as the PANEL principles.

Overview by His Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons for Scotland (HMCIPS)

Dumfries Sheriff Court has been in operation as a courthouse since 1814.

The Court Custody Unit (CCU) was in the basement of the building, with primary vehicular access located at the rear. Entry was controlled via an electronic gate, allowing vehicles to enter a secure docking area that provided direct access to the CCU.

The unit had five cells, all of which were operational at the time of inspection. The cells were similar size and were fitted with solid doors, with one cell fitted with a small observation window. The CCU had a maximum capacity of 11.

On the day of inspection, the CCU received two adult males. One was transferred from Police Scotland, and the other was a remand prisoner from HMP Kilmarnock. The man from Police Scotland appeared in court and was released prior to the arrival of the prisoner from HMP Kilmarnock, who had been delayed due to transport staffing issues. There was one additional male prisoner from HMP Kilmarnock making a virtual appearance for a procedural diet.

Dumfries is one of the oldest court buildings in the country and, as is the case with many historic court facilities, the CCU did not include a dedicated accessible cell or toilet. However, the dimensions of the existing cells and toilet were sufficient to accommodate individuals with mobility needs. Level access from the rear courtyard into the CCU supported the safe management and movement of individuals with disabilities. In addition, access to the court rooms was facilitated by a lift located in close proximity to the CCU, ensuring that appropriate access arrangements were in place.

The multi-agency safeguarding process in place at Dumfries was excellent and has been recognised at good practice. HMIPS has highlighted the need for basic support and clearer responsibility for helping individuals released from custody across Scotland's courts.

With one notable exception, the building was well maintained and in notably better condition than other facilities of a similar age. It did, however, exhibit some signs of general wear and tear and would benefit from minor repairs. The inadequate ventilation contributed to an environment that lacked airflow and temperature moderation. This should be addressed to better to support the welfare of people held.

With four recommendations and one area of good practice, inspectors found knowledgeable and well-motivated staff who were observed to be polite and effective, operating under the leadership of an experienced manager who demonstrated strong interpersonal skills. The manager also engaged proactively with each individual admitted to the CCU, taking time to communicate effectively upon their arrival.

The provider ensures that all custodies are lawfully detained. Each custody’s time in the Court Custody Unit (CCU) is accurately calculated; they are properly classified and allocated to cells appropriately. The provider cooperates fully with agencies that have powers to investigate matters in the custody areas.

The PERs completed by staff were of excellent quality and contained very detailed information in relation to the demeanour of the custody and their general welfare. Due to what was observable on the day of inspection, it was not possible to inspect this standard in full, specifically 1.2.8 and 1.2.9. However, staff were able to communicate the process they would follow to meet these quality indicators.

Standard 2 Summary
	The cells and corridors had a stale odour; ceiling air vents were blocked and were not allowing the flow of fresh air. (see photograph) All cells were accessible for people with disabilities and cell two was used as an observation cell if required. The CCU was well maintained and freshly painted, with the exception of the radiator in the toilet which was defective and in a poor condition. (see photograph)

The CCU was clean throughout, and the cleaning schedule was clearly displayed and up to date. Cleaning was carried out by SCTS staff every afternoon with specific cleaning requests responded to without delay.

Sandwiches or instant noodle pots were provided for lunch, and hot microwave meals were available. Any specialist dietary requirements that could not be met from the food held in stock was sourced from a local café and paid for by staff who were reimbursed.

Toilet doors should ensure individuals can have privacy when using the toilet, while allowing staff to identify if an emergency requires intervention. The door at Dumfries was full length and opaque, inhibiting the latter.

Standard 4 Summary
	The last inspection carried out by HMIPS at Dumfries CCU identified the need for a security gate at the rear of the premises to protect staff and individuals alighting from vehicles. The more secure physical environment provides an option not to use physical restraints. Some aspects of standard four could not be fully inspected as the circumstances did not permit on the day. Staff were however able to show an understanding of the use of force and searching. There had not been a use of force incident for over 3.5 years.

	Staff were frequently required to escort people from the CCU to court using the lift situated in the corridor leading to the CCU. There was no way for staff to call for assistance if needed. Dumfries CCU had an embedded safeguarding process which was excellent. Historically, they handled a number of cross border releases who would often be left struggling to return home. GEOAmey, Police Scotland, Criminal Justice Social Work and The Scottish Welfare Fund collectively created a “Release from Custody Safeguarding” form (See Annex B) that ensured any custody on release received the appropriate service from the appropriate agency.
Standard 4 Recommendations/Advisories/Good Practice
4.2.10	GOOD PRACTICE: The multi-agency release from custody safeguarding process ensured custodies safety and welfare on release from the CCU.
4.4.2	RECOMMENDATION: Staff should have a mechanism by which they can get assistance when in the area approaching and within the lift.

STANDARD 5: RESPECT, AUTONOMY AND PROTECTION AGAINST MISTREATMENT

Staff treat all custodies respectfully. A custody's right to statutory protections and the complaints processes are also respected.

Staff engage with custodies respectfully, positively and constructively. Custodies are kept informed about the progress of their court case and are treated humanely and with understanding.

	QUALITY INDICATOR 1: Respect and Rights	Unable to Inspect	Yes	No
