INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

His Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons for Scotland (HMCIPS) is required to inspect the conditions in which prisoners are transported or held across Scotland in order to establish the treatment of, and the conditions for, prisoners and to report publicly on the findings. This includes prisoners, prisoner transport and Court Custody Units where prisoners and custodies are held awaiting appearance on court.

This report is part of the programme of inspections of Court Custody Provision carried out by HM Inspectorate of Prisons for Scotland (HMIPS).

These inspections also contribute to the UK's response to its international obligations under the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (OPCAT). OPCAT requires that all places of detention are visited regularly by independent bodies – known as the National Preventive Mechanism (NPM) – which monitor the treatment of and conditions for detention. HMIPS is one of 21 bodies making up the NPM in the UK.

The inspections of CCUs are informed by a set of Standards as set out in our document 'Standards for Inspecting Court Custody Provision in Scotland,' published March 2017 which can be found at

HMIPS Standards for Inspecting Court Custody Provision in Scotland

These Standards contribute positively to the effective scrutiny of court custody provision in Scotland, and will encourage continuous improvement in the quality of care and custody of people held in court cells.

The Standards provide assurance to Ministers and the public that inspections are conducted in line with a framework that is consistent, and that assessments are made against appropriate criteria. This report is set out to reflect the performance against these Standards.

HMIPS assimilates information resulting in evidence-based findings utilising a number of different techniques. These include:

- obtaining information and documents from the Scottish Courts and Tribunals Service (SCTS) and the court inspected;
- shadowing and observing staff as they perform their duties within the CCU;
- interviewing custodies and staff on a one-to-one basis;
- inspecting a wide range of facilities impacting on both custodies and staff; and
- reviewing policies, procedures and performance reports

The information gathered facilitates the compilation of a complete analysis of the CCU against the Standards used. A record of the evidence gathered is produced by those undertaking the inspection against each of the Standards inspected.

HMIPS takes a human rights-based approach to ensure that both the standards and the principles of human rights are integrated into policy as well as the day to day running of organisations under scrutiny.

This report has been created based around a human rights base approach known as the PANEL principles, set out as follows:

Participation: participation must be active, free, meaningful and give attention to issues of accessibility, including access to information in a form and a language which can be understood.

Accountability: accountability requires effective monitoring of human rights standards as well as effective remedies where human rights breaches occur. Is there evidence of issues raised previously now having been addressed?

Non-discrimination and equality: a human rights-based approach means that all forms of discrimination in the realisation of rights must be prohibited, prevented and eliminated. Are the most vulnerable and at risk identified and supported effectively?

Empowerment: a human rights-based approach means that individuals should know their rights or be made aware of them. Is information readily available and support provided so individuals know their rights and entitlements while in custody?

Legality: a human rights-based approach requires the recognition of rights as legally enforceable entitlements and is linked into national and international human rights law. Are the processes and procedures adopted in the CCU in line with legal obligations and human rights standards?

These are known as the PANEL principles.

Overview by His Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons for Scotland (HMCIPS)

Fort William Sheriff Court and Justice of the Peace Court dates back to the late 19th Century and was refurbished in 1996 to provide increased accommodation facilities. The Court services the jurisdictional requirements of the Lochaber District and is based in Fort William. The Justice of the Peace Court was established in the same building in 2008.

The building was situated next to the local police station until January 2014 when the police station was demolished and replaced by a hotel. This significantly reduced vehicular access to the CCU, that is situated to the rear of the court building, and privacy when moving custodies to and from the building.

The CCU consisted of two cells, both were operational at the time of the inspection. The cells were of similar size and were suitable for accommodating two custodies in each, giving a capacity of four. The CCU had one interview room that could be used as an overspill cell if required. Fort William does not have a custody court and only accepts custodies for trials. There were no custodies in the CCU on the day of the inspection.

As with many CCUs located in older buildings, there was no access for people with disabilities or for those of limited mobility to pass from the CCU into the court itself without negotiating a steep flight of stairs. Inspectors have noted that this has been addressed in other CCUs through the fitting of a chair lift. It was seen however that there was full access into the CCU itself via a ramp at the rear door and full access to disabled toilets from the CCU.

Inspectors found the CCU to be a very clean and well-maintained facility.

Overall this was a good inspection with no advisories and five recommendations. Contingency plans, risk assessments and health and safety inspections required to be updated and a clearer understanding of the process between GEOAmey and SCTS for ensuring custodies released from the CCU had means to travel home safely.

On the PANEL principles, inspectors found that in all areas the human rights of custodies were being actively considered.
